INTRODUCTION

The Great Migration from England, which started in 1630, brought Edward Ketcham to Ipswich, Massachusetts Bay Colony by 1635. Edward, considered to be the progenitor of the those named Ketcham, Ketchum or Catchum, was known to have been in Cambridge, England from 1619 until 1628. We do not know about his life there nor do we know if he migrated for economic or religious reasons. When he emigrated, he was about forty-five years old, and he brought his family. Once in New England, he moved about, leaving Massachusetts Bay Colony within five years for Southold, Long Island. There he remarried and fathered another family. He was in Stratford, Connecticut when he died in 1655. Three of his sons remained on Long Island while one son settled in Norwalk, Connecticut. The Ketchum families I have endeavored to follow were those of the north; New York, Connecticut, Massachusetts and Vermont. After the Revolutionary War, the Ketchums moved into Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, and Canada. The impetus for this genealogy was a search for my ancestor, Nathaniel Wilson Ketchum, who was born in Massachusetts in 1814. He was in New York in 1818; Ohio by 1830 and in Illinois by 1839. He seemed to have inherited the wandering traits of Edward Ketcham. In my quest, I have found it particularly rewarding to know how many of the Ketchum descendants have documented their families and have been willing to share their knowledge. I thank them for their help. All of us are indebted to the late Marianne Oberton Ketchum of Genoa, New York. Her unpublished work, compiled in collaboration with the late Mildred Ketchum Rice, is in the Newberry Library in Chicago.

GENERATION
I

1. EDWARD(1) KETCHAM, considered to be the progenitor of the Ketcham/Ketchum family in America, was born about 1590 in England. He died in 1655 in Stratford, New Haven Colony, Connecticut. He left a will which has been ravaged by time. The fragment that can be read mentions his wife, Sarah; son, John and daughters. Inventory was taken June 19, 1655. He signed his will "Edward Catcham." Edward was said to have been a man of pleasing countenance and of ready speech. He appeared to have been a wanderer, moving from parish to parish in Cambridge, and from place to place in America. The earliest record of Edward was of his marriage to Mary Hall on August 22, 1619 in the Church of St. Andrew the Great in Cambridge, England. While he was from Cambridge, he was not born there. There is no other record of him from the time of the baptism of his daughter, Ann, in 1628 in Cambridge until his emigration to New England in 1635. No further record of Mary Hall has been found. Edward was declared a freeman in Ipswich, Massachusetts Bay Colony on March 9, 1636/7 and a proprietor in 1638. He signed a petition of remonstrance against the removal of John Winthrop the Younger on June 21, 1637. On March 3, 1639/40 he appeared at General Court to have his daughter, Hester, freed from the bondage of John Woolridge "on account of his bad conduct." He was recorded as a cattle owner June 30, 1639. In 1640 he sold his Ipswich land to Samuel Boardman. Edward was found next in Southold, the oldest town on Long Island. Records of December, 1653 speak of "that parcel of badd meadow lying in the creek going toward Hoggneck beginning from the meadow of Edward Ketcham." Purchased on August 8, 1654, of Ensign Alex Bryen of Mitford, were all of the accommodations which were Edward Ketchum's of Southold. We assume that he married his second wife, Sarah, in Southold. Sarah was daughter of Christopher Salmon of St. Botolph's

Parish in London. She was sister of William Salmon of Southold and of Elizabeth Salmon who, in 1638, married Thomas Curtis of Wethersfield, Connecticut. William Salmon, age 25, was transported to St. Christophers in the "Matthew" of London on May 21, 1635, per warrant from the Earle of Carlisle. Edward Ketcham testified that he witnessed an oral agreement between his brother, William Salmon, and Henry Whitney, Thomas Benedict and Matthew Sunderland on ownership of this new land called Hashamommock, part of the township of Southold. After Edward's death, Sarah married Widower Henry Whitney. Henry was born in England about 1620 and died about 1673. In his will of June 5, 1672, he bequeathed "unto my beloved wife" the home lot and dwelling house during her widowhood and "her waring Apparell and Linning". On June 11, 1660 Henry filed a complaint in the Huntington, Long Island court against Joseph Whitman for stealing his daughter's affections contrary to her mothers mind and of using unlawful means to obtain his daughter's love. "Sara Cecham," the daughter, was to appear in court to shed further light on the matter. Henry and Sarah Whitney left Huntington in 1661, settling in Norwalk, Connecticut by 1665. It is not known where and when Sarah Salmon died.

John most likely came to Ipswich, Massachusetts Bay Colony with his father in 1635. His Ipswich land adjoined that of William Payne. Records show that he purchased tools from an estate in 1647. As "John Catcham," he subscribed to Major Denison's compensation in 1648. He was representative to the General Court.
On April 2, 1653 Stephen Goodyear of New Haven sold unto John "Cetcham" of Southold, Long Island all the tract or piece of land and meadow which at first was granted to Richard Jackson. John sold this land to Thomas Moore October 3, 1661. He was named in the records of the town meeting at Brookhaven, Long Island December 1, 1659. He was a property owner of Setauket in 1660-1661. The first mill grant was recorded in 1659 to John "Chacum." He was constable in 1662. In 1664 New Netherlands was surrendered to Great Britain by the Dutch. The whole of Long Island became subject to the Duke of York. Colonial Governor Richard Nicholls convened a meeting made up of two Deputies from every town. They met at Hempstead on March 1, 1665. Deputies from Huntington were Jonas Wood and John "Cetcham." He was named Patentee of Huntington November 30, 1666. John "Kecham" of Huntington purchased salt meadow land in Newton, Long Island from Elizabeth, the widow of Edward Jessop, March 1, 1666. John sold his Huntington land to William Leverich March 2, 1668. He resettled in Newtown. Town Records show that it was "voted to call Mr. Leverich as minister and. . Lt. Ketcham . shall learn his terms-December 2, 1668." John bought "Foster's Neck" from James Lorison on December 21, 1677. In 1691 Edward Jessop, Jr. tried to recover the land that John had bought in Newtown. John served as town constable, clerk, deputy and overseer. John Hadden of Westchester, with consent of Elizabeth, widow of William Smith, late of Yonkers, bound William, eldest son of William, to John as apprentice to learn the trade of wheelwright on September 5, 1685. He was overseer of the will of John Ramsden of Newtown September 20, 1686. John Ketcham and wife, Bethia, deeded land to his "well-beloved" son, Philip, September 24, 1692, and and to son, Samuel, "with love and affection", on December 27, 1692. An indenture between John and Bethia, his wife, and Joseph Burroughs was made February 15, 1694.

John's first wife was Susan. She was living when he conveyed his Southold property to Thomas Moore on October 3, 1661. He married his second wife, Bethia, daughter of John and Martha Mead Richardson of Westchester on February 26, 1676/7. Bethia was named in her father's will of November 16, 1679. John made an ante-nuptial agreement with her father. John died intestate at Newtown. Letters of Administration were granted to Bethia on May 17, 1697. Widow Bethia married Joseph Hunt of Westchester. OLD TIMES IN HUNTINGTON, an Address by Hon. Henry C. Platt delivered at the Centennial Celebration at Huntington, Suffolk Co., NY on the 4th day of July 1876. "The British troops, after the battle of Long Island, swept the Island for forage and provisions. They oppressed the people and stole their stock and property. The first British Regiment that arrived in Huntington was the 17th Light Dragoons a few days after the battle of LI. They found no American troops to oppose them. The officers stopped at the home of Stephen Ketcham which stood on the road. All around it were vacant lots. Mr. Ketcham, having been one of the Patriot Town Committee, had left Huntington for a time. The house was in charge of Mrs. Ketcham who had a large family and a number of slaves. The officers turned their horses into a lot by the side of the house, a part of which was a peach orchard. Mrs. Ketcham, at the time, had just finished baking in her oven 15 loaves of bread. She went to the door and requested one of the officers to turn their horses into another lot as they might destroy the peach trees, which request was politely granted. But the officers, seeing the bread, marched in the house, and without comment or apology, seized and carried off every loaf, leaving the old lady as mad as a hornet. Later in the day, when she came to look around for her large cooking pot, a very necessary article in those days, to cook her dinner, she discovered it was missing, and, suspecting the British soldiers had stolen it, she put on her bonnet, went out the door, across the road, and up in the fields to the south of the house where they were encamped. Wandering on the outskirts of the camp for some time, she at last discovered her cooking pot hanging over a fire containing some savory mess in process of cooking. Watching her opportunity, when no soldier was near, and when they were otherwise engaged, she turned it upside down, "dumped" the contents into the fire, seized it and retreated in good order, without being discovered, having successfully accomplished her purpose and recovered her property. This was the first raid on the British by women and children in Huntington, and victory perched upon the banner of the brave old lady!"

The Clarksburg, Massachusetts Families

The settlement of Clarksburg, Berkshire County, Massachusetts was begun in 1769. The town, located on the north branch of the Hoosac river in the Hoosac mountains, was seven miles long and two and one half miles wide, bound on the north by Stamford, Vermont, on the south by North Adams, on the east by Florida and by a mountain wall on the west. The area was first called New Seconk or Bullock's Grant but was named Clarksburg upon incorporation in 1798.

The first settlers were Baptist. About 14 years after the settlement, the inhabitants of the unincorporated lands in what is now Clarksburg and Stamford, united in building a house of worship. The walls were of peeled spruce logs. The roof was of bark. This church was used in the summer for several years. A Baptist church was established at Cheshire Four Corners which some of the Clarksburg families joined. In 1799 a church, formed of residents of Stamford and Clarksburg, called The First Baptist Church, was established with about 60 members.

The settlement was made by Captain Matthew Ketchum, his son Matthew, and his cousins, Epenetus, Daniel and Samuel Ketchum who had come from Long Island. The town derived its name from the Clark brothers, Nicholas, Aaron, Stephen and Silas, who hailed from Rhode Island. Nicholas was one of the original purchasers in Bullock's Grant, and divided his holdings with Stephen and Aaron. Stephen had the title of "King of Clarksburg" as he was the wealthiest man in town. Aaron and Stephen resettled in Whitesboro, New York.

The Hoosac Valley, by Grace Greylock Niles, reports: "The Wilbur, Eddy, Carpenter, Arnold and Niles families of Adams, Pownal and White Creek hailed from Rhode Island and were all related by marriage." The Darlings must be included. David Darling, born in 1747 in Rhode Island, died October 11, 1823 and was buried in North Adams. He married Amelia Veazie. They were early members of the Stafford Hill Baptist church. He was a blacksmith and opened the first Public Inn in North Adams. 14. EPENETUS(5) KETCHUM, son of Jonathan(4) Ketcham and Hannah(4) Ketchum, was born October 3, and baptized October 13, 1736 in the Presbyterian church, Huntington, Suffolk County, New York. He died on February 26, 1829 in Clarksburg, Berkshire County, Massachusetts. After his father's death in 1751, his family left Huntington. Epenetus lived with or near his uncle, Elihu Ketchum, in The Oblong, Dutchess, County, New York. On May 12, 1763 he registered the ear-mark for livestock identification at Pine Plains. His brothers, Daniel and Eliphalet, petitioned the court in Sharon, Connecticut on June 6, 1760 to have Epenetus named guardian. His sister, Hannah, made a similar petition on June 18, 1762. Epenetus' wife was said to have been Elizabeth Smith. They married about 1758. She was born about 1740 and died about 1828. They were first settlers of Clarksburg in 1769. Family legend said that the Clarksburg Ketchums became Baptists.
MASSACHUSETTS SOLDIERS AND SAILORS IN THE WAR OF THE REVOLUTION lists "Katcham, Epaenetus" serving in the Berkshire County Militia which was sent to reinforce the Army at Bennington on August 17, 1777. He was listed again on October 30, 1781 when Captain Levi Brown's Company of Adams was sent to join the army under General Stark at Saratoga. I do not know whether it was Epenetus, Senior or Epenetus, Junior who served. Epenetus became blind while excavating a cellar some 30 or 40 years before his death. His death, at the age of 94, was recorded in "The Socialist" newspaper of Adams on March 13, 1829.

57. NATHANIEL WILSON(7) KETCHUM, son of Justus(6) and Lucy Griffin Ketchum, was born in Clarksburg, Massachusetts November 14, 1814. He died in Stephenson County, Illinois July 15, 1849. He was buried in the Hulse cemetery near Pecatonica, Illinois(g.s.). Family legend said that Nathaniel, in order to save his boots, plowed barefoot, caught pneumonia, and died. The Mortality Schedule of 1850 lists cause of death as consumption.

Nathaniel's family left Clarksburg in 1818, going first to Adams, New York, then to Middlefield, Ohio. Some time after their arrival in Ohio, Nathaniel "went west" to Stephenson County, Illinois. There he married Harriet Barker on April 15, 1839. Although they were almost penniless when married, by 1845 they had purchased land from the government. Their Rock River farm, consisted of 180 acres.

Harriet, daughter of Asa and Molly Marr Barker, was born August 2, 1808 in Swanton, Vermont. She died November 5, 1897, leaving a will. She was buried by her husband. Her father served in the War of 1812. Her grandfathers, William Marr of Warren, Massachusetts and William Barker of Norwich, Connecticut, served during the American Revolution.

Harriet accompanied her brothers to Stephenson County, Illinois, arriving in August of 1837. She often told of the trip by boat, of being mired in the mud of Chicago, and of the journey by horseback. After her husband's death, she rented the farm and built a small house in Pecatonica. She deeded the house to granddaughter, Eva Lake Tuttle, in return for Eva's care.

Harriet, a fine seamstress, made a silk gown for herself and a black broadcloth suit for Nathaniel. These garments were given to the Nebraska State Historical Society by Eva Lake Tuttle and Helen Davison Fleming.
